CPU Scheduling Problem

Consider $p$ processes sharing the CPU in a round-robin fashion. Assume that each context switch takes $s$ seconds. If each process is guaranteed to get its turn at the CPU every $t$ seconds, what must the quantum size $q$ be in terms of $p$, $s$, and $t$? Assuming none of the processes terminate.